Special to The Courier.
CAMP SIGARFOOS, Mt. Gretna, July 13.—Saturday: rain; hot; strong wind. Sunday: supposedly a day of rest, but the officers did not seem to think so. The afternoon alternating between rain and sun.

"Bob" Cunningham is official pill roller, dispensing out "C. C.'s" and iodine. Yates is ambulance driver. He likes the job so well that he says he is going to join the Turkish Red Cross in the same capacity. Planigan is guide of the camp in the matter of the "hose-shedding" department of this man's army, but is trying to obtain his release on the grounds of ignorance of hose shoeing of course.

"Red" Stephens is the assistant cook. Today we had roast beef, and "Red" claims he used to be a cook in Bishop's restaurant—hence his experience. The boys see where "Red" gets a job as soon as he lights in town.

"Tom" Spinning is the adopted official indoor sport of the camp. It entertains the boys very much. Saturday night it rained very hard. Raymond and Wilhelm were washed out. Having no bunk beds they had to sleep on the ground.

The company on the next street has a victory by which we are royally entertained and would be more so if somebody would send them a supply of new officers.

Yesterday Captain Jink had us putting up officers' tents, four in all. Captain is a big man but he can't sleep in four tents.

"Pete" Rogers had us hunting stones in use in the building of the stove. The job was like the one of the Israelites had when their cruel Egyptian masters forced them to make bricks without enough straw—there were no stones to be had.

History of St.
John's Church,
50 Years Old

Mention was made briefly in The Courier yesterday that next August St. John's German Lutheran church, South street, Connellsville, would celebrate its 50th anniversary. Rev. George Dietz, the pastor, has written the following brief history of the congregation.

It was in the summer of 1871 when Rev. H. Lemcke of West Newton organized this congregation with seven families. It was at first organized as a German-English congregation.

Soon after Pastor Lemcke began his work in this new field, the old Disciple church was purchased, repaired and fitted up for the use of the Lutheran congregation. His successor was Rev. P. Doerr and in May, 1881, Rev. W. Mueller accepted a call. During the latter's pastorate the parsonage was purchased and there was an encouraging growth in the membership.

During the pastorate of Rev. C. Tiemann, since 1884, St. John's became a purely German church. The English-speaking members withdrew because the English services rendered were no longer satisfactory. They were organized into a congregation by a minister of the Allegheny synod and have now become a strong congregation—Trinity Lutheran.

In 1889 Rev. G. Virechow became pastor and on March 31, 1890, Rev. P. Tiemann was elected. He was pastor during the time of financial depression and strikes, when there was much distress among the poor. Hoping to be able to relieve this distress among his people, he proposed to colonize a few of the willing to go with him to Wisconsin. About one-fourth of the congregation went with him.

November, 1894, Rev. L. O. Hammer was elected pastor and in April, 1897, Rev. G. L. Lohmann took charge. During 1901 the new church was built. It was 14,500 feet in size, gothic in style, built of stone, red and yellow pressed brick. The ceiling of the auditorium is purely gothic and is finished in cedar. The entire cost of the building was about $15,000.

During the time of the present pastor, George Dietz, since 1906, the old church debt of $12,000 was about paid off and a fund of about $5,000 was raised for necessary improvements, including the interior of the church, and decorating the interior with a concrete wall along church and parsonage, installing a new pipe organ and also a new heating system for church, school and parsonage, and many repairs, costing $7,500.

Today the congregation consists of 175 families, over 100 of them living scattered over more than 35 coke towns, as far as Greensburg, Brownsville, Nesbitt, Smithfield and West Newton.

The members of the present church council are Joseph Rusnak, Fred Baughman, Christ Kiehl, trustees; M. Schleicher, J. Hulbert and A. Weimer, elders; E. Ruck, treasurer; G. Rosenthal, cashier; J. Hill, secretary.

Bather Minus Suit Hides

Poison Ivy; Doctor Called

Special to The Courier.
DUNBAR, July 13.—"The Old Swimmin' hole" in Gut run near Kaffer station has been made more popular than ever before by the excessively hot weather of the past two weeks. In fact it is the popular summer resort for the girls and young men of the entire vicinity, and is drawing some patrons from Connellsville, Lobsenz and Trotter. While the bathing costumes are not so distinctive nor stylish as those seen at Atlantic City, the wearers get really more enjoyment, and the girls and bathers are numerous and on more than one occasion young men, who thought the early evening hours about supper time would be safe to try the water without bathing suit, have been forced to "take to the woods" because of the approach of fair feminine bathers.

At least one young man was forced to carry under cover for some time and to his alarm discovered his hideous place was decorated with poison ivy, and as a result he was under the doctor's care for more than a week. He now uses his bathing suit on all occasions and advises all others to follow his example.

The young men declare that the most delightful employment that has ever come to their lot is teaching the pretty girls to swim, and the boys are calculating that it will require at least a month to make the girls proficient.

JOINT MEETING OF VETERANS AND
LADIES AUXILIARY

A Very Interesting, Entertaining and Successful Event.

MEMBERSHIP INCREASED

To 155 by Night Address: Ladies Adopt By-Laws; Reformed Church Singers Present Program; Time of Annual Picnic Is Definitely Fixed.

The joint meeting of the members of the Connellsville Division of the Baltimore & Ohio Veterans association and the Ladies' Auxiliary in the assembly room of the Y. M. C. A. last evening was a most successful and enjoyable event. It was largely attended by members of both organizations.

At a brief session held by the man Grand President George Sturmer de livered one of his energetic addresses making an appeal to the members to aid in the campaign the company is conducting to secure economy in expenditures. He drew attention to the vast aggregate of expenditures for small articles, like lead pencils, paper, etc., and showed that to the extent the company can save on these and other items, the more certainly will it be able to adopt a more liberal pension policy to the veterans, which movement is now under way. J. H. Garvey of Wheeling, grand vice-president, also made a short address. James Wardley, grand secretary, presided. The meeting was opened with prayer by Rev. J. H. Dorman.

Following Mr. Sturmer's address the ladies took charge and conducted a regular business session of the auxiliary. Mrs. James Wardley, vice-chairman, presiding in the absence of Mrs. Emma Snyder, chairman. The by-laws of the auxiliary were reported by Mrs. Mary Zimmerman, chairman of the committee chosen to draft them, and adopted as read. Applications for membership were read and from eight ladies, all of whom were duly elected, increasing the membership to 155.

At the conclusion of the business session of the auxiliary, a company of entertainers, consisting of the choir of Trinity Reformed church, assisted by Miss Jessie Rhodes, accompanist, presented a highly entertaining and interesting program which included selections by the choir, quartets, trios, duets and solos and violin and mandolin duets and solos, and readings, all of which were very appreciatively received. The members of the choir which contributed this feature were: Soprano, Mrs. J. H. Dorman and Mrs. E. B. Giesner; alto, Miss Elizabeth Rupp; tenor, Miss Luelia Penrod; bass, George Rudolph, E. C. Giesner and Solomon Lepley; basses, Ralph Lepley and O. S. Gettys. The program in detail was as follows:

Chorus, "Anchored"; vocal duet, "Sing Me to Sleep," Mrs. Dorman, Mr. Rudolph; violin and mandolin duet, "Melody in F," Miss Penrod, Mr. Rudolph; Scotch song, "I Have a Lullaby," Mrs. Giesner; reading, Miss Rupp; mixed quartet, "Farmer's Song"; mandolin solo, "Love Bird," Miss Penrod; vocal solo, Ralph Lepley; tableau, "When you and I Were Young"; vocal solo, "Rosalie," Mr. Rudolph; Italian songs, Mrs. Rupp; trio, "Woman's Work," Mrs. Dorman, Mrs. Giesner and Miss Penrod; reading, Miss Rupp; negro melodies, "Swing!" quartet; chorus, "Dixie Land."

The committee in charge of the entertainment and refreshments consisted of W. W. Haines, Mrs. Edward Shupe, Mrs. John Brinker and E. C. Loudon.

At the men's session announcement was made that the second annual picnic of the veterans and their friends will be held at Edgewood park, Somerset, on Tuesday, August 16. The special train will leave Connellsville at 7:40 A. M. instead of 9:40 as last year, giving more time at the grounds. Returning the train will leave Somerset at 5:40 P. M.

Final plans for the gathering, which is expected to be even larger than that of last year, will be arranged at a meeting of the several committees, to be called by W. W. Haines, general chairman.

Some More Truths.

WOULD you use a steam shovel to move a pebble? Certainly not. Implements are built according to the work they have to do.

Would you use a grown-up's remedy for your baby's ills? Certainly not. Remedies are prepared according to the work THEY have to do.

All this is preliminary to reminding you that Fletcher's Castoria was sought out, found and is prepared solely as a remedy for Infants and Children. And let this be a warning against Substitutes, Counterfeits and the Just-as-good stuff that may be all right for you in all your strength, but dangerous for the little babe.

All the mother-love that lies within your heart cries out to you: Be true to Baby. And being true to Baby you will keep in the house remedies, specially prepared for babies as you would a baby's food, hairbrush, toothbrush or sponge.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Are You Prepared?

A doctor in the house all the time would be a good idea. Yet you can't afford to keep a doctor in the family to keep baby well or prevent sickness. But you can do almost the same thing by having at hand a bottle of Fletcher's Castoria, because it is a wonderful remedy for indigestion, colic, feverishness, fretfulness and all the other disorders that result from common ailments that babies have.

Fletcher's Castoria is perfectly safe to use. It is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrup. Children cry for Fletcher's Castoria, and mothers recommend it because they have found it a comfort to children and a mother's friend.

If you love your baby, you know how sweet it is to be able to help baby when trouble comes. You cannot always call upon a doctor. But doctors have nothing but good to say of Fletcher's Castoria, because they know that it can only do good—that it can't do any harm—and they wouldn't want you to use for baby a remedy that you would use for yourself.

Advertisements at First City.
It took several years after the establishment of the first newspaper in America for advertising to become popular. John Campbell, the postmaster of Boston, who, in 1704, started the Boston News Letter, the first real newspaper in this country, had great difficulty in persuading his contemporaries to advertise in his paper.

William Bradford and Peter Zenger in New York were hardly more fortunate at first, and even Benjamin Franklin, for many years after he began the publication of the Pennsylvania Gazette, found his advertising columns very meager.

After 1800, however, the increasing advertisement space in all the leading papers showed that they were well supported.

CAME FROM BROKEN RAINBOW

Prophet Legend of the Iris Which Should Be Familiar to Every Lover of the Flower.

Preparations for the joint display by the American Iris Society and the Columbus Iris Society, held in Columbus, led to a discussion the other day of the origin of this beautiful flower. Prof. A. C. Hooten of the department of horticulture of Ohio State University told this story, according to the Columbus Dispatch.

"It was the last of the six days of creation. A rainbow was above the earth and the rainbow sat a group of angels. Casting their eyes around and over the vast universe they discovered far below them this new world and were charmed by the beauty of its mountains, its trees, its lakes and its plains.

"The earth was filled with all manner of strange animals, and yet among them walked something so beautiful that even the angels marveled at the handiwork of God, for they saw, within the Garden of Eden, Adam and his wife, Eve.

"Marveling at the sight of such great beauty and wishing to share this with other friends, they called many other angels to their lookout upon the rainbow, and these angels in turn called others, until finally the weight was great and the rainbow cracked. But they did not know that the rainbow had cracked, and so they continued to call other angels. Suddenly the rainbow broke into thousands of pieces and fell to earth.

"Lovers of flowers know that it was the iris that received these bits of the rainbow and that is why its colors are so delicate and so numerous."

WORLD PRODUCTION OF GOLD

Figures Given by the Director of the Mint Show Enormous Amount of Metal Mined.

Since Columbus landed in America, according to statistics assembled by the Director of the mint, the world has produced as much gold as 1900 amounted to more than 3 billion troy ounces. The estimated amount is the equivalent of 20,463,022 tons of the precious metal, occupying 46,100,866 cubic feet, and worth more than 174 millions of dollars.

The tremendous volume of gold mined is measured by a bigger unit than the gold dollar. If its magnitude is to be appreciated, if gold were cast in gigantic "dollars" one foot thick and having a diameter of approximately 10 feet 9 inches, each would weigh 35,000 tons and be worth 100 million dollars. The world's gold production since 1492 would make 177 such "dollars" and leave more than half enough for another. If stacked, therefore, these gargantuan coins would form a tower 10 feet 9 inches in diameter, more than 177 feet high. Since 1492 the average annual world production would have added about five and a half of these "dollars" to the stack each year, but in 1918 and 1920, the latest two years for which statistics are complete, the output would have made less than four of the million-dollar pieces each year.—National Geographic, Bulletin.

Friendly Warning

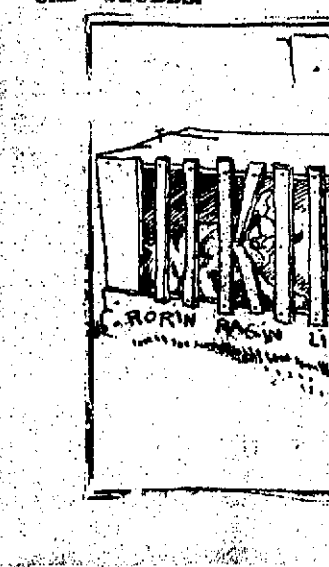

Under the caption "A Friendly Hint" the following forcibly worded advertisement in Rivington's New York Gazette of January 18, 1715, was directed against a resident who had made a grievous financial error, very much to his own advantage.

"If a merchant of this city who lives near the Exchange, not many miles from Broad street, does not within 15 days from the above date return £10 which, by mistake, he was overpaid in settling an account, a narrative of the whole transaction, with his name at length, will be published in a future paper and the truth of it supported by an affidavit. If, in the meantime, the gentleman should recollect the error and will make any overture to Mr. Boole at Mrs. Haight's in Smith street, secrecy will be observed."

X-Ray Dangers

An unexpected danger from X-rays has been reported to the Paris Academy of Sciences. It appears that these rays may not only produce injury in the workers themselves, but that they may penetrate walls and ceilings of buildings, with risk to the dwellers in houses adjoining the X-ray laboratories. Lead sheathing for the laboratory walls and ceilings is recommended as a safeguard.

"CAP" STUBBS.

News of Dunbar

Special to The Courier.

DUNBAR, July 13.—It is a matter of regret that owners of lots in Mount Auburn cemetery should be so neglectful of them as many of the owners are, allowing the lots to become unsightly and a matter of remark by visitors and those attending funerals. Every spring before Memorial Day most all owners see that lots and graves are made presentable, but that day over many seem to forget all about the resting place of their dead, and weeds and cinquefoil run riot, telling their tale of neglect to all beholders. As it would require but a short while to keep the lots looking well all the year lot owners ought to make the effort to do so. The cemetery corporation when selling the lot makes the care of it a part of the agreement, and it expects this part of the contract carried out, either by the owner or by some one he has hired. Easterners for the dead should prompt this labor of love, and even this should be stimulated by the desire to add to, rather than detract from, the looks of the cemetery.

Another proof that Dunbar is getting on the map is that we are to have a really big circus on the 18th. If it all compares with the posters, it may be worth seeing, and many of our people are going to find out whether this bill is a truthful or merely gross exaggeration.

Says Farmers Go Crazy for Lack of Recreation

Washington.—One of the reasons why you "can't keep 'em down on the farm" was explained here at the seventy-seventh annual convention of the American Institute of Homoeopathy.

More farmers go crazy every year in the United States than any other class of citizenship, Dr. J. M. Lee of Rochester, N. Y., told the convention. Work, worry and lack of recreation are the causes.

Professional men—clergymen, physicians and lawyers—are less likely to go crazy, Dr. Lee said. However, Dr. Lee warned, don't be too sure of yourself, for insanity is slowly but steadily increasing.

ROYAL SALUTE TO HERRING

Hungry Folk of Petrograd Welcome With Cheers a Big Cargo of Dutch Fish.

Riga.—Honors such as are usually accorded to royalty or to officials of high rank, were given the Dutch steamer Alexander Polden when it arrived at Petrograd recently, says the newspaper Izvestia of Moscow. The steamer brought the first large cargo of food that has entered the harbor for about three years, and as it passed Kronstadt it was saluted by the battleship Murat, while Russian sailors lined the docks and cheered. The Dutch captain dipped his colors, while the ship's band played and the vessel steamed direct to the pier and began to unload its cargo of herring.

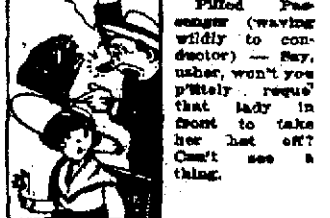

With years of starvation behind them, dock workers, by day and night shifts, unloaded 5,500 barrels of the ship's cargo so swiftly that the next day twenty carloads of herring were dispatched to Moscow, while the rest was left for distribution in Petrograd. Only the day before the ship arrived the Economic Life wrote as follows about Petrograd:

"The fate of the city is so tragic that no comparison can be found in the world's history. The immense mortality of Russia during the last few years may be regarded as far more tragic than the fall of Pompeii."

Since the Alexander Polden made port two more steamers have arrived at Petrograd, carrying 17,000 barrels of herring, which were quickly unloaded.

DISSYPTICS QUIT STOMACH DRUGGING

A physician says that in most cases of stomach trouble there is really no disease of the stomach at all, but just too much acid. Excessive acid prevents natural digestion, causes sour stomach, fermentation of food, and this upsets the liver and intestines and causes nervousness, weakness, sleeplessness, loss of "blue."

Quit stomach drugging and artificial dieting. Simply take a teaspoonful or four tablets of ordinary Bismarck Magnesia in a glass of hot water after meals to neutralize the excessive acidity and you will be all right.

It works fine. You can eat what you want and sleep all night—no more walking the floor at three and four o'clock in the morning and suffering from extreme weakness and nervousness all the next day. Bismarck Magnesia is for sale by all druggists in powder or tablet form. Try this plan for three weeks.—Advertisement.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, JULY 13, 1921.

SLOW BUT ENCOURAGING
PROGRESS.

The execution by Judge Reppert of a parole granted one person sentenced for bootlegging and the imposition of sentences ranging from $500 fine and six months to $3,000 fine and one year in the workhouse on other persons found guilty or who had suffered pleas of guilty, is further proof that the business of bootlegging the law by vending liquor is being gradually and determinedly broken up.

In granting reasonable terms and conditions of parole to persons upon whom sentences have been imposed the court has very plainly evidenced its desire to afford every opportunity to the convicted to prove that they can be law-abiding and useful citizens.

In the same time they are not being left in doubt as to the purpose and intent of the sentences to convince other and would-be offenders that the law will be enforced without discrimination or favor.

No one would pretend to say that anything more has been done than to make a start, but the results accomplished thus far are sufficient to demonstrate to doubters that the activities of the violators are destined in due time to be very much restricted. When it is more generally understood that the sentences for the apprehension of persons engaged in the illegal traffic are becoming better qualified by the sentences and the apprehension of influences against the law because of the sentences, it is almost impossible to prevent them. Taking measures from others who would resist to the utmost any compromise with crime and influenced by the fact that arrests are resulting in convictions or pleas of guilty followed by the imposition of sentences that are corrective, a very considerable number of persons who formerly were apathetic or indifferent are beginning to display an interest and sympathy with the law enforcement measures.

These developments are, therefore,
regarded as highly encouraging inasmuch as the progress may appear to be slow.

STAND UP AND BE COUNTED

Special to The Courier:

WASHINGTON, July 13.—That every patriotic person should do his part to counteract foolish talk and influences and should stand up and be counted was the assertion of Harvard Elliott, chairman of the executive committee of the Northern Ohio Citizens' League, in an address before the Citizens' League of the University of Chicago, today.

Harvard Elliott, taking this as a text,
the Republican Publicity association makes the following comment:

"This is another way of expressing the sentiment voiced by Chairman John T. Adams, of the Republican National committee, when he said recently: 'Politics is the art and science of government. It is the art and science of the noblest occupation of citizenship and he who withholds himself from its activities is a peace-time slacker.'

"The citizen of sound principles and good purposes who remains inactive in forming public opinion and shaping public policies," continues the association, "is not a peace-time slacker,
but he is far from a good citizen."
He is properly characterized by Mr. Adams as a 'peace-time slacker.'

"There are no inactive citizens among the Socialists, the I. W. W., the Bolsheviks. They are propagandists and all working in season and out of season to add converts to their cause and hasten the time when there shall be either a peaceful or violent revolution for the overthrow of the United States government. They are not afraid to stand up and be counted."

"As Mr. Elliott very appropriately pointed out in his address at Harvard,
the United States has made remarkable development in the 40 years since it received its diploma. As Mr. Eliott said: 'This has come increased comfort, convenience and luxury for the people; many inventions have produced improved health and sanitary living conditions as well. Over a million has been given to charitable and educational work. And yet, some human relations are not right.

We are in turmoil when we should be a happy nation working together for the good of all. There is a spirit of unrest, of discontent, of extravagance, of idleness, of expected perfection and impatience when we should remember that perfection and success are not immediately within one's grasp.

What are called radicalism, socialism,
communism and Bolshevism are advocated by a minority of people who should know better. They lead a receptive ear to those foolish yet dangerous doctrines and thus encourage the ignorant, the thoughtless and the wicked."

"Because of that tendency to 'fly to the extreme,' we know not of Mr. Elliott appeals to the more thoughtful and far seeing people of the United States to, inculcate in the minds of the young the purpose of holding steadfastly to those good old common sense principles of hard work, patience, courage, thrift, and consideration for the other fellow, rather than to follow the wilderness of half-baked and fallacious theories."

"But if this is to be done every patriotic person must do his part and have the courage to stand up and be counted."

News and Gossip
From Camp Sigerfoos

By Private Herman L. Franks.

While Lieutenant Mariotta was getting all shined up to go down town last evening some swell dame passed in an automobile and yelled, "Isn't he the cutest boy?" In the scramble to get another glimpse of said Jane, Captain Bewick fell over the water bucket and had to change uniforms. The result of Lieutenant Mariotta's diligent search down town after supper has not been announced.

Miss Sergeant Rodgers has kept Private Brendel busy ever since arrival in camp wiping tears out of the potatoes eyes. Private Brendel says it is a sad and wet job.

Private Kenneth Evans has the big idea that after a few more lessons on his ukulele the 110th Infantry band will be dispersed with.

Private Claude Adolph Florio was assigned to the very responsible duty of guarding the incinerator to keep the Howitzer Company men from carrying away the hot stones that were in it. Adolph says he didn't have much trouble keeping the stones in place, but standing around a hot fire in the summer time for three and a half hours gets his "goat."

Private Ernest McClintock seemed a little confused yesterday. He was seen wandering aimlessly around in search of the "keys for the field oven"
for the cook.

Private "Pete" Scott inquired at exactly 11 company streets for "bugle oil." He will be issued a bravery medal for having nerve enough to come back and tell about it.

Some bird from the Service Company had nerve enough to stick his head under his tent and call Lieutenant Mariotta's pet bull dog "Hummus." The pup was insulted. He hasn't been in the company street since.

As the company's "little barefoot boy," Private "Gob" Beniston differs from Longfellow's boy by weighing in the neighborhood of 200 pounds.

Captain Bewick declares he will come back to Connelville sporting a skating rink on the top of his head if the Howitzer Company doesn't "pipe down" after taps.

It was almost 12 o'clock last night when Private "Red" McClintock put himself to bed. He couldn't find the "bunk stretcher."

Private "Jim" Leech forgot his "left handed" tooth brush. As the result he has an awful time cleaning his teeth.

The Howitzer Company received its last shipment of bed sacks yesterday. Lieutenant Mariotta and Corporal Hunt both say their bunks don't feel half so hard as that Washington avenue front porch did the night before we left for camp.

The Howitzer Company still retains its name as the "Millionaire Company," of the regiment, as it sports a victorious, a real, vicious looking bulldog and a tag in front of the first mess tent. Every one doesn't know that the dog is a dead one but they do know that the victrola and the "pup"
are very much alive.

For the benefit of the men who were here last year and were unable to be here this year we wish to say that the band still plays "Number Nine" in the same old way.

Corporal Paul Collins initiated himself at the skating rink last night.
This being Paul's first trip to such a reckless place, naturally something had to happen. He is not sure of the details but he thinks the floor flew up and hit him. Never-the-less he has a couple of loose teeth and a sore jaw today.

The Howitzer Company contained a bunch of boys in a real fighting mood last evening. All shined up to attend the dance and then Mess Sergeant Rodgers had to spot everything by serving onions for supper. Some of the boys went hungry. It didn't bother Rodgers as he went to the movies.

Private "Sonner" Hanford has just gone to the Supply Company in search of his share of one bucket of comprehension for the howitzers.

Some kind friend tenderly upset
"Kid" Brendel out in the Company street last night after taps and he said there is sweet repose for three hours.

Privates Hanford and Lowery have been "promoted" to Captains of the Band, effective today.

The Howitzer Company is known all over the regiment as having a real "hardboiled" top kick. So far we haven't realized the fact ourselves.
We consider him the comic section of our company.

THE GREATER PEACE.

I have lived long enough to learn
The things which are of great concern,
And I would write them down today:
For him who follows in my way:
I would impress upon his mind
The peace that comes of being kind.
And I would teach him there is no time
That can exceed an honored name.

Unto the eyes of youth it seems
That most important are his dreams,
Yet high-born dreams come tumbling down.
And few attain the world's renown.
And even those who rise to power
Must live through many a troubled hour.
The thing that counts through peace
and strife
Is, above all, a well-lived life.

Better by far than glory famed,
Is to meet all men unshamed.
Greater than fortune's glittering gold
Is love of friends when man is old.
Who gains his neighbor's high esteem
Shed never more some broken dream.
Who knows true friends are standing
By.

Has peace which wealth cannot supply.
As Time, the great teacher of us all,
Shows us her glories, large and small,
Much that we once thought splendid Falls.
And the great joy of conquest fades
Richer than days of victorious glories.
The kinder days of love and peace
Who knows true friends are standing
By.

CHAPTER XX.

The coming of Noreen. The next day came a new element in the situation. A ship arrived from England. On it was one who had come to Jamaica to act as governor to two children of the officer commanding the regular troops in the island. She had been ill for a week before leaving Kingston, and when the steamer reached the harbor she was in a bad way. The ship's doctor was despondent over her, but he was a second-rate man, and felt that perhaps an island doctor might give her some hope. When she was carried ashore she was at once removed to the home of the general commanding at Spanish Town and there a local doctor saw her. She was thin and worn and her eyes only told of the struggle going on between life and death.

"What is her name?" asked the resident doctor. "Noreen Balfe," was the reply of the ship's doctor. "A good old Irish name, though you can see she comes of the lower ranks of life. I leave her in your hands. I'm a ship's doctor, and she's now ashore." As they left the room together they met Sheila and one of the daughters of the house. "I've come to see the sick woman from the ship if I may," Sheila said. "I've just heard about her and I'd like to be of use."

The resident doctor looked at her with admiration. She was the most conspicuous figure in the island, and her beauty was a fine support to her wealth and reputation. It was like her to be kind in this frank way. "You can be of great use if you will," he said. "The fever is not infectious, I'm glad to say. So you need have no fear of being with her—on account of others."

"I have no fear," responded Sheila with a friendly smile, "and I will go to her now—no, if you don't mind, I'd prefer to go alone." She added as she saw the doctor was coming with her, "The eyes of the sick woman opened and looked at Sheila. There she lay, then a look of horror and relief in her face, as if such a thing might be. A sudden energy inspired her and she drew herself up in bed, her face grew sharp."

"You are Sheila Boyne, aren't you?" she asked in a low, half-guttural note. "I am Sheila Lynn," was the astonished reply. "It's the same thing," came the response. "You are the daughter of Mrs. Boyne."

Sheila turned pale. Who was this woman that knew her and her history? "What is your name?" she asked. "Your real name—what is it?"

"My name is Noreen Balfe, it was Noreen Boyne."

For a moment Sheila could not get her bearings. The heavy scent of the flowers coming in at the window almost suffocated her. She seemed to have a grip of herself. Presently she made an effort at composure. "Noreen Boyne! You were, then, the second wife of Mrs. Boyne?"

"I was his second wife. His first wife was your mother—you are like your mother!" Noreen said in agitation.

The meaning was clear. Sheila laid a sharp hand on herself. "Don't get excited," she urged with kindly feeling. "He is dead and gone."

"Yes, he is dead and gone."

For a moment Noreen seemed to fight her masters of her stark emotion, and Sheila said, "Lie still. It is all over. He cannot hurt you now."

The other shook her head in protest. "I came here to forget and I find you—his daughter."

"You find more than his daughter," she said. "You find his first wife and you find the one that killed him!"

"I killed him!" said the woman in agitation. "You killed him—you struck him down! Yet you let an innocent man go to prison, and he kept there for years, and his father got to his grave with shame, with estates ruined and houses lost—and you were the guilty one—you all the time!"

"It was part of my madness. I was a coward and I thought then there were reasons why I should feel no pity for Dyck Calhoun. His father injured mine—oh, badly! But I was a coward, and I've paid the price."

A kinder feeling now took hold of Sheila. After all, what the woman had done gave happiness to her—Sheila's hands it relieved Dyck Calhoun of shame and disgrace. A jailbird he was still, but an innocent jailbird. He had not killed Mrs. Boyne.

Besides, it wiped out forever the barrier between them. All her blind devotion to the man was now justified. His name and fame were clear. Her repugnance of the woman was as nothing beside her splendid feeling of relief. It was as though the gates of hell had been closed and the curtains of heaven drawn for the eyes to see. Six years of horrible shame, wiped out and a new world was before her eyes.

This woman who had killed Mrs. Boyne must now suffer. She must bear the ignominy which had been heaped upon Dyck Calhoun's head. Yet all at once there came to her mind a softening feeling. Mrs. Boyne had been rightly killed by a woman he had wronged, for he was a traitor as well as an adulterer—one who could use no woman well, who broke faith with all civilized tradition, and reverted to the savage. Surely the woman's crime was not a dark one, it was injured innocence smiling depravity, tyranny and lust.

Suddenly she looked at the woman who had done this thing, she, whose name had rid the world of a traitor and a beast, felt back on the pillow in a faint. With an exclamation Sheila lifted up the head. If the woman was dead, then there was no hope for Dyck Calhoun, any story that she—Sheila—might tell would be of no use. Yet she was no longer agitated in her body. Hands and fingers were steady, and she felt for the heart with firm fingers. Yes, the heart was still beating, and the pulse was slightly drumming. Thank God, the woman was alive! She rang a bell and lifted up the head of the sick woman.

A moment later the servant was in the room. Sheila gave her orders quickly, and snatched up a pencil from the table. Then, on a piece of paper, she wrote the words, "I not Dyck Calhoun, killed Mrs. Boyne."

A few moments later Noreen's eyes opened and Sheila spoke to her. "I have written these words. Here they are, see them. Sign them."

She read the words, and put a pencil in the trembling fingers and on the cover of a book Noreen's fingers traced her name slowly but clearly. Then Sheila thrust the paper in her bosom, and no instant later a nurse sent by the resident doctor entered.

"They cannot hang me or punish me, for my end has come," whispered Noreen before Sheila left.

In the street of Spanish Town almost the first person Sheila saw was Dyck Calhoun. With pale radiant look she went to him. He gazed at her strangely for there was that in her face he could not understand.

"Come with me," she said and she moved toward King's house. He obeyed. For some moments they walked in silence, then all at once under a magnolia tree she stopped.

"I want you to read what a woman wrote who has just arrived in the island from England. She is ill at the home of the general commanding."

Taking from her breast the slip of paper, she handed it to him. He read it with eyes and senses that at first could hardly understand.

"God in heaven—oh, merciful God!" he said in great emotion, yet with a strange physical calm.

"This woman was his wife," Sheila said. He handed the paper back. He con-

The Unit of Advertising Value Is Circulation

But mere number of printed copies means nothing unless they are actually delivered and read.

The Audit Bureau of Circulations—a national association of advertisers, publishers and advertising agents—was organized to give impartial examination to all publishers' statements issued by A. B. C. members.

An Audit by the A. B. C. covers not only the total number of papers printed—it looks into the way subscribers were obtained. If a paper offers extravagant inducements to swell the number of subscribers, its value as an advertising medium is lessened.

Some Publishers print a large number of papers, but allow a liberal return from newsdealers. You get that information from an A. B. C. report.

quired his agitation. The years of suffering rolled away. "They'll put me in jail," he said with a strange regret. He had a great heart.

"No, I think not," was the reply. Yet she was touched by his compassion and thoughtfulness.

"Why?"

"Because she is going to die—and there is no time to lose. Come, we will go to Lord Mallow."

"Mallow!" A look of bitter triumph came into Dyck's face. "Mallow—at last!" he said.

CHAPTER XXI.

With the Governor. Lord Mallow frowned on his secretary, "Mr. Calhoun to see me! What's his business?"

"One can guess your honor. He's been fighting for the island."

"Why should he see me? There is the general commanding."

"The secretary did not reply, he knew his chief. And, after a moment, Lord Mallow said, 'Show him in.'"

When Dyck Calhoun entered, the governor gave him a wintry smile of welcome, but did not offer to shake hands. "Will you sit down?" he said, with a slow gesture.

Calhoun made a dissenting motion. "I prefer to stand, your honor."

This was the first time the two men had met since Dyck had arrived in Jamaica, or since his trial. Calhoun was dressed in planter's costume and the governor was in an officer's uniform. They were in striking contrast in face and figure—the governor long, thin, ascetic in appearance, very intellectual save for the riotous mouth, and very spick and span—as though he had just stepped out of Adm. Mack's, while Calhoun was tough and virile and with the air of a thorough outdoor man. There was in his face the firm fighting look of one who had done things and could tackle his affairs—and something more, there was in it quiet exultation.

"You have done the island and England great service, Mr. Calhoun," said the governor at last.

"It is the least I could do for the land where I have made my home, where I have reaped more than I have sown."

"We know your merit, sir."

A sharp, satirical look came into Calhoun's face and his voice rang out with vigor. "And because you know my merit you advised the crown to confine me to my estate, and you would have had me shot if you could. I am what I am because there was a juster man than yourself in Jamaica. Through him I got away and found treasure, and I bought land and have helped to save this island and your place. What do I owe you, your honor? Nothing that I can see—nothing at all."

"You are a mutineer and but that you showed your courage would have been hung at the yard arm, as many of your comrades in England were."

A cold smile played at Calhoun's lips. "My luck was as great as my courage. I know. I have the luck of Calcuttivity!"

At the last words the governor winced for it was by that touch Calhoun had defeated him in the duel long ago. It galled him that this man whom he detested could say such things to him with truth.

CULTIVATE HABIT OF THRIFT

Practice Means That One Will Be Ready to Seize Opportunity When It Comes.

Practice thrift habitually. Make it as much a part of your routine as eating and sleeping. Get yourself systematized. Work on a definite schedule. Save regular amounts. Plan your work and your actions so that you will have no idle time no lost motion, no wasted energy.

These are among the secrets of success, happiness and progress. The time to begin the cultivation of thrift habits is now.

The most important message that can be conveyed to the people of this nation today is "Get the thrift habit." Practice thrift not for a brief interval or intermittently, but habitually.

Diurnal said, "The greatest secret of success in life is to be ready when your opportunity comes."

This brief sentence furnishes one of the best reasons for promoting thrift; that ever has been given. It presents a phase of the question to which not enough attention is paid. Ordinarily thrift is looked upon as a means of accumulating one against possible emergencies or of building up an accumulation of money for some definite purpose. But there are many unexpected turns in the pathway of life.

Humor Superior to Wit. Wit, bright, rapid and blasting as the lightning, flashes and strikes and leaves in an instant humor, warm and all-embracing as the sunshine, bathes its object in a genial and abiding light.—Whipple.

PARROT MADE MUCH TROUBLE

Abilities of Brooklyn Bird Entirely Unappreciated by the Women of the Neighborhood.

For several weeks past young women passing along Hanson place have been much annoyed by loud whistling, apparently coming from someone who wished to attract their attention. The whistling has had a most peculiar effect, depending on the temperament of the women. Some have quickened their pace and tried to get away, others have turned and surveyed the man who happened to be behind with flushed faces and angry glances. One or two have even complained to the police, while a few have lagged to find out what it was all about.

Recently a highly indignant woman complained to a policeman.

"That man behind me has been whistling to attract my attention for five minutes," she said. "I wish you would stop it."

Much to her amazement the policeman laughed unrestrainedly. He pointed with his hand to a window opposite the Hanson Place Baptist church and there sat the culprit, winking and whistling away. It was a gray parrot with a long red bill. He had learned to whistle like a mischievous country boy, but he reserved his tricks for the women passing. For some time the flirtatious parrot has upset the equanimity of the entire neighborhood.—Brooklyn Eagle.

SOUGHT TO ENHANCE CHARMS

Roman Beauties Well Knew the Value of Time Spent at the Toilette Table.

The toilette of the Roman beauty was a vastly important affair. The mirror which assisted in it was usually Greek slaves, and the length of time devoted to it may be judged from the fact that, like beauties of France so many centuries later the Roman women often had the poets and the philosophers of the day to divert her during its progress, a favor to which they seem to have been less appreciative than their descendants in France.

Both elaborate and complete, comb mirrors of burnished bronze bottles for perfumes and boxes for rouge and whitening preparations are all to be found in collections of Roman toilette articles, and many are the harsh words on the subject of the feminine toilette to be found in the writings of their masculine contemporaries who disapproved of charm in their women, yet seem with masculine inconsistency to have disapproved equally of women without charm.

Watch and Wait. While it is true that we never know what trouble or disaster may befall us we likewise never know what great opportunity is going to come into our lives from an unexpected quarter. If we tend the lives of the men of our country who have risen from poverty and obscurity to the greatest heights of success we find that there were certain times in their lives when great opportunities presented themselves, that much of the success of these men was due to the fact that they were able to take advantage of such opportunities when they came.

How often have we witnessed the unhappy spectacle of some man falling to rise to the complete possibility of opportunity as a result of thriftlessness?

Thriftless habits will undermine any character and eventually lead to ruin.

Times Change. "We see they have operated on a Chicago boy's head to make a better boy of him."

HOUSING OF HOGS MOST IMPORTANT

Sunshine and Ventilation Are Essential Considerations.

Modern Ideas in Sanitation and Saving of Labor Are Carried Out—Entire Front of This Structure Is Practically a Wall of Glass.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD. Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF CHARGE on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Sunshine is the elixir of life. Human beings, animals and plants all thrive on it. They all need it in large quantities and unless it is available they wither and die. The building profession has taken cognizance of this important principle in the construction of modern homes, factories, office buildings and farm structures. In each of these light and ventilation is tremendously important—in the home it acts as a stimulant of intellect and body builder. In the office it prevents the workers from becoming sluggish keeps them wide awake and healthy, in the factory it increases the efficiency of the help and last but not least in the farm buildings it helps to increase food production. The cows need it to keep up a healthy milk flow.

But in this connection we should not overlook that neglected animal of the farm the hog. Under ideal and unimpaired conditions a matured pig weighs about 250 pounds. Formerly hogs on the farm were allowed to roam at will and were given very little care or attention. If they had a shelter it was very poor at best and more or less slatpik in make-up. Their food was a matter of little importance. But with the development of modern farming methods and the increasing emphasis upon the need for better farm buildings the hog came in for a share of the attention. Today the hog house is one of the important buildings in the farm group.

In the construction of this building sunshine is by far the most important factor. Sunlight to the hog is better than any manufactured tonic that we ever devised. He thrives on it, gains in weight, and brings home the "bonum." To get all the sunshine possible into the hog house special windows are installed. They are arranged in such a way as to permit the sun at any time of the day to penetrate to every corner of the building.

As an excellent example of how far this construction is carried into practice consider the entire front of this structure is a wall of glass. It is sawtooth in shape and the front wall of the sawtooth addition is made up of double hung windows. Below in the main part of the hog house are smaller single windows and opening on a level with the ground is a series of doors. Through these windows and doors the house is assured of a constant and liberal supply of fresh air and an abundance of red sunshine.

In construction this hog house is frame set on a concrete foundation. It is 72 feet long and 24 feet wide and has eighteen hog pens. A feed room at the end is large enough to take care of the entire drove. The partitions between the pens are steel of the latest sanitary type. By installing a carrier track in the feeding alley which runs down the center between the two rows of pens, the farmer can eliminate much of the heavy work connected with the raising of hogs.

The feed carrier can carry the feed from the feed room to the various pens. There will be no need for the old style wheelbarrow. Instead of re-belling against this task, the farmer's son or hired help will be complaining "It's a dandy time saving plan."

The old adage and it certainly is true of the construction and equipment of farm buildings. The right building and the right equipment will save the boy for the farm later on. These will be no more to the city if farm life is made comfortable and profitable. What more efficient way than building labor-saving buildings?

In the construction of this hog house another important condition was taken into consideration. Nearly five per cent of the fires on farms are caused by lightning. It has been proved, by government investigation that efficient lightning protection will prevent 50 per cent of these fires. This protection has been provided for this hog house in the form of lightning rods. A little expense at the start will save not only money but prevent trouble later on.

The part that modern buildings and equipment will play in increasing the food production of the country in years to come will be very important. Hog houses built on the sunshine plan will do their share.

INDIAN LEGEND OF CREATION. Nez Percés Hold Belief That All Man Kind Is Descended Directly From That Tribe.

"Like nearly all people, the Nez Percés Indians have a tradition concerning the origin of the human race," writes Maj. Frank Fern in the Idaho Statesman. "According to the Indian story was in primordial times a dragon on which went about the earth, destroying whatever came in its way. There was only one creature capable of evading the monster. This was the coyote. When all other living things had been made victims of the dragon it determined to establish its supremacy by killing the only surviving antagonist. After long search for the elusive coyote the dragon finally met the little animal on the north bank of the Clearwater river at a point now marked by a conical mound of stone which in the course of ages was reared by the Nez Percés in commemoration of the creation of man and as a monument to their sacred animal the coyote. After much maneuvering the dragon finally secured a glimpse of the dragon just behind the little animal. Because of its confinement on the dragon could not turn its head to reach the coyote in this position and the little animal gnawed its way through the side of the monster and tore out its heart."

"As the blood from the dragon's heart was sprinkled on the sands of the river the coyote's hot breath came in contact with the blood-moistened mud and created a sediment mass which took form and became the race of the Nez Percés, from whom have descended the people of mankind."

Little Chinese Work. Little like trees growing absurdly in bowls of the latest cloisonné and bearing upon the intricately carved branches clustered close to the cool green of the jade leaves and buds of coral and amber and delicately wrought blossoms of the translucent white jade might be a memory of the Arabian Nights and Aladdin's lamp. They might be, but they are not. They are tributes to the infinite patience and skill of the Chinese artisan in such precious stones and the skill of the decorator who buys with America in gold the treasures of the Far East and gleamingly carries them back across the Pacific for the delight of a luxury-loving people.

They are expensive but they represent not only the toil of years but the expression of the artist's soul.

Gloating the Tongue. A glove for the tongue has been patented by an inventor of Indiana. It is called a "tongue shield," and is designed to enable the wearer to evade the unpleasantness of a castor oil or other bad tasting medicines. The contrivance might be said to have the shape of a miniature slipper without any heel portion, but when placed over the tongue is inserted into the "V" part and the back part of the "sole" extends over the top of the tongue toward the throat. The device is made of thin rubber so as to be liquid proof, and is so constructed as to fit the tongue snugly without discomfort. When medicine is taken it passes into the throat without affecting the sense of taste, so that all unpleasantness is obviated.

Dinner-Plato Pennies. Some of the first coins were enormous the idea apparently being to discourage the greedy from attempting to accumulate and carry around too many of them. There were copper coins as large as a dollar piece. This inconvenient style had to give way to the demand for smaller and more convenient forms of currency, and the small pennies soon included in size to meet the popular demand.

The earliest trace of the use of gold as money is to be found in the pictures of the ancient Egyptians weighing in scales heaps of rings of the precious metal. But there is no actual record that these rings were known as coins with a fixed value.
